U.S. Department of Education Announces Additional Partnerships to Break Up the Federal Education Bureaucracy

FEBRUARY 23, 2026

The U.S. Department of Education (ED) today announced two new interagency agreements (IAAs) to further break up the federal education bureaucracy, ensure efficient delivery of funded programs and activities, and continue delivering on the President’s promise to return education to the states. By partnering with agencies that are better positioned to deliver results for students and taxpayers, the new partnerships will streamline federal education activities on legally required programs, reduce administrative burdens, and refocus programs and activities to better serve students and grantees.

ACTING ASSISTANT SECRETARY OFFICE OF CAREER, TECHNICAL, AND ADULT EDUCATION

Nick Moore

Nick Moore most recently served as the director of the Governor's Office of Education and Workforce Transformation (GOEWT) under the leadership of Alabama Governor Kay Ivey. Moore focused on aligning Alabama's education and workforce programs, implementing Alabama's state longitudinal database system, establishing Alabama's non-degree credential quality and transparency system, and curating a competency-based education and skills-based hiring system in Alabama. Under Nick's leadership, the GOEWT worked to establish a learning and employment record, a skills-based job description generator, and a human-centered public workforce system designed to assist Alabamians with overcoming benefits cliffs and other barriers to entering the workforce. Nick holds a Bachelor of Arts from Harvard University and a Master of Public Policy from Cornell University. Moore is a native of Enterprise, Alabama. He served as a Teach for America corps member in Lowndes County, Alabama where he had the privilege of teaching secondary social studies, government, and economics at Central High School. After completing his tenure in Lowndes County, Nick received a Teach for America Capitol Hill Fellowship. During and after his fellowship, he covered education, health care, and workforce development in the Office of Representative Martha Roby (AL-02). Nick later served as Senator Luther Strange's Legislative Assistant for healthcare, education, and labor. Nick joined the Department of Education as Deputy Assistant Secretary for Career, Technical, and Adult Education in April 2025.
